General Comment

I currently have a self-managed IRA. On occasion, I have sold covered calls, bought call options and even purchased puts as insurance to limit my downside risk on an equity. I have dealt in options for probably 12 to 14 years and I have spent quite a bit of time educated myself on their use and the risks involved. I do not think the federal government needs to place restrictions on the availability of options trading in IRAs or 401Ks. Thank you for allowing me to comment.
